 Non-establishment of opinion with regard to novelty, 	inventive step and industrial applicability

1.	 The questions whether the claimed invention appears to be novel, to involve an inventive step (to be non- obvious), or to be industrially applicable have not been examined in respect of:
		the entire international applica	ation,
	\boxtimes	claims Nos. 12 (as to industrial applicability only) because:
	☒	the said international application, or the said claims Nos. 12 relate to the following subject matter which does not require an international preliminary examination (specify):
		see separate sheet
		the description, claims or drawings (indicate particular elements below) or said claims Nos. are so unclear that no meaningful opinion could be formed (specify):
		the claims, or said claims Noscould be formed.	s. are s	so inadequat	ely supported by the description that no meaningful opinion
		no international search report	has b	een establish	ned for the said claims Nos.
2.	 A meaningful international preliminary examination cannot be carried out due to the failure of the nucleotide or amino acid sequence listing to comply with the standard provided for in Annex C of the Administrative Instructions:
		the written form has not been	furnisl	hed or does i	not comply with the Standard.
		the computer readable form h	as not	been furnish	ed or does not comply with the Standard.

Re Item III

Non-establishment of opinion with regard to novelty, inventive step and industrial applicability

Claim 12 relates to subject-matter considered by this Authority to be covered by the provisions of Rule 67.1(iv) PCT. Consequently, no opinion will be formulated with respect to the industrial applicability of the subject-matter of this claim (Article 34(4)(a)(I) PCT).

Re Item V

Reasoned statement with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

Novelty (Article 33(2) PCT)

The available prior art does not disclose benzimidazoles having a -X-Y substituent as defined in claim 1 in position 4 or 6: the subject-matter of claims 1-12 is therefore novel.

Inventive step (Article 33(3) PCT)

The subject-matter of claims 1-3, 5, and 8-12 does not involve an inventive step:

D1 and D2, which can both be considered as closest prior art, describe benzimidazole derivatives substituted on the benzene ring by, amongst others, a possibly substituted benzyloxy or benzylamino radical, which can be attached to the 4 (or equivalent 6) position of the benzimidazole ring-system. These compounds are useful as gastric secretion inhibitors.

In the light of the teachings of D1 and/or D2, the problem underlying and solved (see table at page 63 of the description) by the present application can be seen in the provision of further gastric secretion inhibitors.

To solve this problem, the present application proposes amongst others to modify the substitution-pattern of the compounds disclosed in D1 and/or D2, particularly with regard to the 1, 2 and 6 positions, maintaining however a benzyloxy or benzylamino residue in position 6, in a manner which is usual in the design of alternative drugs, and which does not involve an inventive step in the absence of resulting unexcepted effects.

The subject-matter of claims 4, 6 and 7 involves an inventive step:

The subject-matter of these claims results from the replacement of the 6-benzylamino or 6-benzyloxy radical in the compounds disclosed in D1 and/or D2 by a bicyclic-amino or bicyclic-oxy radical which is not suggested by the teachings of the prior art.

Industrial applicability (Article 33(4) PCT)

The compounds and medicaments of claims 1-11 can be used in the pharmaceutical industry.

For the assessment of the present claim 12 on the question whether it is industrially applicable, no unified criteria exist in the PCT Contracting States.
